Poppy proceeds taken

People who thought they were making donations to the American Legion on the morning of May 28 were mistaken.

The American Legion's annual "Poppy Day" was held Friday at 27th Street and Madison Avenue. The Legion collected donations from passing motorists.

But an 8-year-old woman who was collecting donations told police Friday morning that two young women made off with about $100.

The woman taking collections told police that two girls drove up to the collection point, told her that they were there to pick up the money collected so far, and take it back to the American Legion.

The woman gave the girls about $100 and they drove away.

But a short time later, the people who were actually supposed to pick up the funds arrived, and the woman realized that she had been duped.

Speeding, DUI arrest

Henry F. Clifton, 38, of the 2400 block of Kirkpatrick Homes, was arrested at 9:54 p.m. May 27 for speeding, driving while his license is suspended and driving under the influence of alcohol.

An officer reported clocking a white 4982 Ford at 58 miles per hour in a 45 mph zone on Edwardsville Road near the Granite City Steel blast furnace.

Clifton, the driver, took three field sobriety tests and a breath analysis test and was charged.

DUI arrest on Nameoki

Lester E. Johnson, 52, of Murphysboro was arrested at 3:41 a.m. May 28 and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

An officer reported seeing a brown 1984 Cadillac Seville drifting across the center line on Nameoki Road near Marion Avenue and then make a right turn onto Fehling Road from the center lane.

Johnson, the driver, took three field sobriety tests and a breath analysis test and was charged. He posted $107 and his driver's license as bail and was released.

Loud truck is stopped

was arrested at 2:26 a.m. May 28 for driving under the influence of alcohol.

An officer reported hearing a black 1974 Chevrolet pickup truck with a loud muffler on Madison Avenue near 20th Street.

Robinson, the driver, took three field sobriety tests, refused to take a breath analysis test and was charged.

Driver booked for DUI

Brett A. Mains, 29, of the 2700 block of Kirkpatrick Homes, was arrested at 3:41 a.m. May 27 for speeding and driving under the influence of alcohol.

An officer reported clocking a gray 1984 Buick Century at 91 miles per hour in a 55 mph zone on Nameoki Road north of Pontoon Road.

A computer check revealed that Mains, the driver, was wanted on a Madison County Sheriff's Department warrant charging him with failure to appear on a charge of failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Mains took three field sobriety tests and a breath analysis test and was charged.

Man alleges gang attack in county jail

By Shay Wessol
Staff writer

A Granite City man is asking Madison County Circuit Court for an excess of $15,000 damages after gang members allegedly attacked him in the Madison County Jail.

Terry Jarosewicz, 20, filed the lawsuit last week through his attorney, Robert Larson.

The suit alleges that "several unruly gang members" placed in the same jail area as Jarosewicz attacked him on May 30, 1992.

Jarosewicz is asking for damages because jail supervisors allegedly failed to protect him by not monitoring the gang members or isolating them from other inmates.

Neither Madison County Sheriff Fred Church nor Jail Warden Ed Newmeyer was available for comment Friday.

1st stalking indictment for county

A 19-year-old Alton man has been indicted in Madison County's first stalking case.

A grand jury Thursday indicted William Belcher on two counts of stalking.

Belcher was arrested and released on bond April 30 after the Madison County State's Attorney's Office charged him with two felony counts of stalking.

The indictment supersedes the state charge.

The indictment accuses Belcher, of the 3100 block of Clay Street, of following his 17-year-old ex-girlfriend April 18 and 24, threatening her home, her relatives and placing her under surveillance by waiting outside her home on numerous occasions.

A second warrant for Belcher's arrest was issued after he allegedly violated his bond conditions shortly after he was released from jail April 30.

A Madison County judge had ordered him not to go within 1,000 feet of the victim, but he allegedly drove straight to the victim's workplace after his release.

The victim and her mother got an order of protection against Belcher and Madison County Circuit Judge George Ferguson ordered the second warrant quashed after Belcher turned himself in.

Ferguson said Belcher did not understand the conditions of his bond because a judge was not available to explain them to him.

Four named in felony warrants

Several Madison County residents were named in felony warrants issued by Madison County's Attorney William Haine during the week of May 24. Those named include:

• Robert G. Mathias, 34, of the 3100 block of Rodger in Granite City, was charged with driving on a revoked license, Granite City police said. Mathias was driving a Pontiac 2000 on May 4 without a valid license. Bail was set at $5,000.

• Nila M. Johnson, 27, of the 1300 block of Klein in Venice, was charged with theft over $300. Granite City Police allege Johnson falsely obtained a $2 from the Central Bank of Madison County from April 1-4. Bail was set at $2,000.

• Lynn Scherer, 47, of the 300 block of West Linden in Marine, was charged with aggravated criminal sexual abuse. Marine Police allege he fondled a girl who was under the age of 18 in May 1992. Bail was set at $50,000.

• Sandra C. Pappas, 22, of the 500 block of N. Schmitz in Lebanon, was charged with retail theft. Collinsville Police allege she took less than $150 in merchandise from the Collinsville Schnucks on May 26. She is in custody in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Henke named president of SILEC board

Auctioneer and Madison County Board member Homer Henke has been elected president of the Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission Board of Directors.

The law enforcement commission is a non-profit organization that coordinates training for police officers, corrections officers, probation officers and telecommunicators in Southwestern Illinois.

"I'm proud to be the president of SILEC and to have a great Board of Directors behind me," Henke said. He was elected to the post earlier this month.

The seven SILEC counties of Bond, Clinton, Madison, Monroe, Randolph, St. Clair and Washington are working hard to ensure that citizens will be safe in their homes, cars and streets," Henke said.

Month delay on building store

By Bob Slatte
Staff writer

Environmental contamination will likely delay construction of a proposed downtown retail development.

Granite City Economic Development Director Alan Orthals said last week that soil contaminated with gasoline has been discovered at former Clark Service Station at the corner of 20th Street and Madison Avenue.

Orthals has the responsibility to clean up the contamination under the city's purchase agreement for the land. The remediation will likely delay construction of a new 14,000-square-foot drug store and food market at the location for at least one month.

The property is in the city's Tax Increment Finance district. Using its quick-take powers when necessary, the city has closed deals on all parcels needed for the development except for the Clark station, Orthals said.

Clark removed underground gasoline storage tanks at the site earlier this year. But because the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency is "backed up," Orthals said, the city hired a private environmental engineering firm to test the site to ensure that the contamination had been removed.

Midwest Environmental Testing of St. Louis found one of about 10 samples taken from the property to be contaminated, Orthals said.

"I don't expect (the remediation) to be an huge expense, but it will delay us a bit," Orthals said.

He said construction had been scheduled to begin by Aug. 4, and is expected to take about four months.

"I think it is realistic to expect demolition to begin by July 1," Orthals said.

"That would mean construction could start about Sept. 1. We are hoping to begin demolition as soon as possible, even prior to possession of the property, if possible," Orthals said.

The city paid an as-yet undisclosed amount of money for the parcels in the development. An article in the defense of the final purchase price for three of the parcels which the city has taken possession of in condemnation proceedings.

The developer will pay the city $242,050 to acquire the property for the retail center, according to the development agreement.

Anti-loitering law faces constitutional problems

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Casper Nighohossian, city attorney for both Madison and Venice, says the cities must be wary about civil rights violations in attempting to enact anti-loitering ordinances.

Nighohossian made the comment at last week's city council meeting after Alderman John Hamm asked him about the "anti-loitering ordinance" that Nighohossian has been asked to prepare for both Madison and Venice.

It was discussed at length at the June City Council meeting May 18.

Nighohossian said, "To reiterate what I told Venice," the U.S. Supreme Court has made it clear that a city has a constitutional right to be in a public place, and that law enforcement officers have no right to question a person's reason for being in a public place.

Restrictions on public places he said, must apply to everyone — such as closing a public park at night or closing it.

He said that any person or group of persons has a right to be walking down a sidewalk at 4 a.m., even if it is obvious to a law enforcement officer that the person or group does not reside in the neighborhood and there is no practical reason for the person or group to be in the neighborhood.

"The police have no right to go up and ask what they are doing there," Nighohossian said. "If the police do, it is a civil rights violation."

Alderman Mike Vrabeck said that, "if a group of youths are hanging out at 4 a.m., you can pretty much assume what they are doing."

"Wrong," Nighohossian said. "What the Supreme Court is saying is that every person has a right to be in a public place and you can't constitutionally assume anything just because they are there."

Nighohossian said that the city has "paid dearly in the past for not understanding that the officer went beyond what his responsibilities actually were."

He cautioned against giving the police a law whose enforcement would likely be a civil rights violation.

Nighohossian said he was working on an ordinance that deals with obstruction of the public in a public place that he believes can be written within the framework of the Constitution and, if properly enforced, will not violate civil rights.

Triage system going 24 hours

The Emergency Room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Granite City, is now using a 24-hour triage system, combining quality medical care with patient attention to increase the satisfaction of its patients and provide better care.

The triage system is a way of organizing personnel and equipment in the ER. It assures the most serious cases are seen first and improves quality of care, officials say.

"We began using a triage system in June 1992 during the busiest hours of the day," said Terri Deloney, director of Emergency Services at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

"As time went on, we realized our midnight shift was getting busier and busier, so we have extended our triage system to 24 hours a day."

Patients are still seen in the order of the seriousness of their complaint.

"We don't want to mislead people. Using the triage system means patients will be assessed faster. However, if a person with a more serious problem, such as a heart attack, comes in, other patients may still have to wait."

"We have been surveying our patients, and they seem to feel better about the triage system. It makes the wait more tolerable," Deloney said.

EPA must listen to public

The United States Environmental Protection Agency may be returning to the site to dig up hundreds of yards in this area and dump the contaminated dirt on the contaminated scrap pile at 15th and State streets.

It is hard not to consider that good news. We all want the EPA to do its job — protect us from the health hazard — but it is hard to see how putting a huge hazardous waste pile in the middle of the community will do that. And the health threat posed by the small quantity of lead in most local yard soil has never been proven to anyone's satisfaction except the EPA's.

But the city is right to be concerned that the EPA, even though it may reopen its Record of Decision — the legal document setting the scope and method of cleanup — for the Taracorp/NL Industries Superfund site here, will only attempt to ram another ROD down the area's throat.

In 1990, with the EPA's own feasibility study for the site, the EPA presented seven alternatives and said one would be selected for the ROD. But during the public comment period — including a number of public presentations — it was hard not to notice that the EPA's preferred "Alternative H" was the only one that really seemed to be getting any consideration.

Sorting through the hundreds of pages of documentation from that public comment period, two things become clear:

One, there were a lot of well-thought-out objections to the EPA's preferred alternative, including those from the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, the city of Granite City, the downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society and a number of private citizens and interested activists.

And two, it could have been a million-dollar billion-dollar; it wouldn't have made a difference. Alternative H had already been selected. Everything that conflicted with Alternative H was noted and filed, as required by law, but otherwise ignored.

It is to this area's credit that it has refused to be steamrollered by the EPA. A lot has happened in the past three years. A number of city officials and community leaders have become extremely knowledgeable about both lead contamination and the bureaucracy that is the EPA.

The fight has been taken to Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C., and the EPA's stubbornly chosen alternative was absolutely no groundwater contamination from the scrap pile at 15th and State. Now, it turns out, the EPA was basing that absolute on faulty testing and there is, and undoubtedly has always been, groundwater contamination.

Perhaps the EPA had forgotten the creed of the bureaucrat — "When in doubt, mumble" — but it is that absolute defense of faulty testing that, as much as anything, showed the EPA's feet of clay and may bring the EPA's plans here crashing back down to earth.

If the EPA's Record of Decision is reopened, the law requires that it go through another period of public comment. Based on the last comment period, it would be easy for local citizens to demand it as a priority.

We cannot let that happen. This time, not only should the public comment, but the EPA should listen.

The EPA must listen. After all, any bureaucracy that can be as wrong about anything as the EPA was about groundwater contamination from the pile needs all the help it can get.

Broad of beam, and proud of it

Carol Clarkin writes this column for the Edwardsville Journal.

Much as I try to keep abreast of the times, there are times that I feel like a small, caged rodent, endlessly and frantically chasing around a spinning wheel. It isn't that I want to change with the changes. I'm not about to shop for Armani clothes and change jackets in the Army surplus store to attain the fashionable look.

Neither am I in the market for roller blades. I simply like to have some idea of what's going on out there. I hope I'm a few steps away from of rocking chair, lavender and staccato delivery.

I may not be on the tennis court, but I like to know the name of the game and a few of the rules. They seem to change too quickly for me to catch up. What's "in," what's "out."

During the 10 o'clock news at our house, we tend to utilize the remote control a great deal — largely to pick up the various segments from our favorite members of the various television networks.

Sometimes to avoid a particular newscaster, as in the case of Channel 4's sports — heaven knows, the last thing I need at that hour is Zip's glittering beady eyes and staccato delivery.

However, we may switch back to Channel 4, after watching a less frenetic newscaster, to return to the program which follows, a real eye-opener: "Love Connection."

The guests on this program come in all sizes, ages and colors of skin, and let's face it, degrees of attractiveness.

What they appear to have in common is that they're so hard up for a date that they're willing to admit that on television. From videotape of three prospects, they select as a date for one evening (or, in some cases, weekend) someone they've never seen or met before.

Later, after the date, they return to the program to describe, in gory detail, the events of the date and their reaction to the "love connection," prospect they chose.

The audience has also made a choice for them and, if the date didn't go well and the audience chose someone else, they're free to take a shot at that choice.

If it's a date that quite a number of these blind dates don't go well, and I've been totally amazed at how bluntly insulting the date participants can be when that's the case. But that's not the most surprising thing about these participants in my view.

While I think the political thing to say would be simply that "we don't really have much in common" or "he (she) really seems like a nice person," but "I'll admit that some of their stories are really gross and they're probably mad."

On the other hand, after going out with a total stranger in this dangerous age, they might be a little bit lucky that he didn't turn out to be a serial killer or a convertible hussy.

What blows my mind, however, is when the two people are actually attracted to each other and describe their reaction upon first seeing their date, how at least one out of every two case histories feature the compliment (?): "...and brother, did she (or he) have a great butt?"

In my own dating years, guys tended to be either leg or bust men and girls were apt to melt over gorgeous eyes, a great head of hair or a generally outstanding overall build. Since when have physical attraction become the main end of the game? The bum's the thing, eh? The delightful derriere?

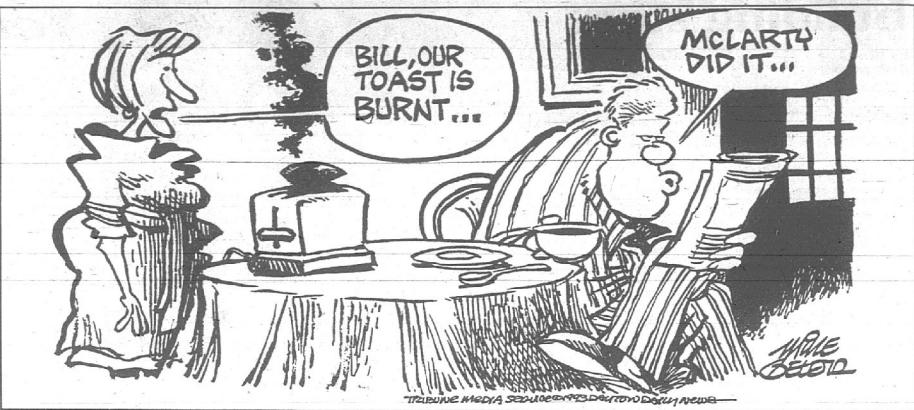

And those beautiful butts need not be neat, trim and relatively small. Some of the guys admit that a broad fanny is something they greatly admire and prize. Some gals feel the same, adding they're mighty attracted to a broad.

Now back in my youth one of the fellows in my crowd fancied himself the master of the sophisticated insult.

During our junior high years, he was wont to address me, twirling an imaginary mustache, with something like, "Well, Carol, you seem to be getting a bit bulky these days!" Not a compliment, but since I was built more like a tank than an hour-glass, I took it for what it was supposed to be — a put-down.

Now that I've become aware that broad-of-beam is "in" — at least with some folks — I might view Bob's comment in a different light.

After all, I've come to qualify. For that matter, I might now take a second look at Bob — from the rear view, that is.

Illinois ideal for 150-mph passenger train service

(By U.S. Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Springfield.)

Long delays at airports, lost luggage and traffic jams are causing more and more people to take a second look at rail travel.

Passenger trains, which have been around for more than 100 years, have become faster, safer and more comfortable in recent years. But increased ridership and technology advancements have created a need for a national transportation network which can further reduce travel time between U.S. cities.

High-speed trains which travel at speeds of up to 150 mph are being developed on Amtrak routes in the Northeast, and are also being used successfully in Europe and Asia. These trains dramatically reduce travel time and give business and pleasure travelers a unique transportation option.

I want to bring this kind of high-speed rail service to Illinois. As a young boy, I remember taking trains from Union Station in St. Louis. In those days, the trains were numerous, but slow.

While trains travel at faster speeds today, high-speed rail service along the St. Louis-Chicago corridor could cut travel time almost in half.

Our guest

The trip, which now takes about 5½ hours, could be reduced to about three hours. The trip from Springfield to Chicago would be reduced to about two hours from the current three hours and 45 minutes.

High-speed rail would be a tremendous economic boon for our area. Businesses would locate along the route, and towns once considered "out of the way" would become more accessible.

It would generally become easier for people to get from place to place in Illinois. High-speed rail service would create jobs and provide a needed economic stimulus for our state.

I recently joined U.S. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena. We are working to establish a national high-speed rail program which could help the effort to bring high-speed rail to Illinois.

The federal plan which we unveiled is the first national high-speed rail effort. It demonstrates President Clinton's commitment to develop a high-speed rail system and its tremendous economic potential.

I am one of the congressional sponsors of this plan, which would provide federal funds to assist in the creation of high-speed rail systems across the United States.

To be eligible for federal funds, a potential corridor would have to be designated as a high-speed rail corridor by the Department of Transportation. The state would then be required to develop a comprehensive plan for attaining high-speed rail service.

Illinois is already well positioned to receive federal funds under this program. Last October, the St. Louis-Chicago Amtrak route, along with four others, was designated for high-speed rail service, making the corridor eligible for federal funding.

In addition, I secured $500,000 in 1991 for a study to be conducted by the state of Illinois on the feasibility of establishing high-speed rail service on the St. Louis-Chicago corridor.

The study, which will be completed this spring, will include an analysis of projected costs and revenues, the type and frequency of service and provide a proposed plan to implement such service.

Because the corridor has already been identified by the U.S. Department of Transportation as one of five high-speed rail passenger corridors and the State Department of Transportation is nearing completion of the high-speed rail study, Illinois is two steps ahead of other states in terms of hoping to develop high-speed rail systems.

Furthermore, I worked over the past four years to secure $14 million in federal low-interest loans for improvements along the track between St. Louis and Chicago.

The funds have been used to replace old, cracked rail with continuous welded rail, which is vital to the future of high-speed rail. And Illinois has already developed a joint state-federal program working to upgrade the tracks between St. Louis and Chicago, giving the state another advantage.

High-speed rail makes sense for Illinois. It is convenient, safe and could help reduce pollution and stimulate economic growth.

Voters, remember how 'considerate' County Board was in May

(Aitor Telegraph comment)

It is inexcusable that most Madison County Board members apparently condone their colleagues' actions of knowingly misleading the public by concealing plans for pay raises.

The concealment appears to be for the purpose of avoiding political heat.

At its May 19 meeting, the board approved raises ranging up to 11 percent for its non-union workers and some department heads.

The raises were set by board committees in closed-door sessions the week before and immediately following the County Board meeting itself.

Astonishingly, one longtime board member actually crowed that the raises were sprung at the meeting to avoid public scrutiny.

Here's what Michael Semanick, chairman of the Personnel Committee, said: "We got hell the last time... So this time we decided to do it right before the meeting so the board members wouldn't read about it in the newspaper first."

It is underhanded actions like this one that create the sort of climate of distrust in which voters become predisposed to reject tax increases, no matter how much they really need.

Come November, the County Board may be back with another referendum asking for a tax increase for the county jail.

Illinois voters will remember the consideration they were given this May?

Opposes Durbin, Clinton policies

TO THE EDITOR:

Ultra-liberal Cong. Richard Durbin, (D-20th Ill. District) is upset that Republicans killed President Clinton's so-called jobs bill.

Even Democratic Cong. Richard Shadid of Alton voted against this bill. It was a good bill in "pork" it would have cost about $80,000 for each government job created.

One pork item was $19 million to build a new bridge.

Seemingly unconcerned with wasteful spending, Durbin is mentioned in Brian Kelly's book, "Adventures in Portland," Page 112.

It's a fairly safe bet, should Clinton ask for a cut in capital gains taxes to spur the economy, that Durbin would have voted against it.

That quite a number of these blind dates don't go well, and I've been totally amazed at how bluntly insulting the date participants can be when that's the case. But that's not the most surprising thing about these participants in my view.

While I think the political thing to say would be simply that "we don't really have much in common" or "he (she) really seems like a nice person," but "I'll admit that some of their stories are really gross and they're probably mad."

On the other hand, after going out with a total stranger in this dangerous age, they might be a little bit lucky that he didn't turn out to be a serial killer or a convertible hussy.

What blows my mind, however, is when the two people are actually attracted to each other and describe their reaction upon first seeing their date, how at least one out of every two case histories feature the compliment (?): "...and brother, did she (or he) have a great butt?"

In my own dating years, guys tended to be either leg or bust men and girls were apt to melt over gorgeous eyes, a great head of hair or a generally outstanding overall build. Since when have physical attraction become the main end of the game? The bum's the thing, eh? The delightful derriere?

And those beautiful butts need not be neat, trim and relatively small. Some of the guys admit that a broad fanny is something they greatly admire and prize. Some gals feel the same, adding they're mighty attracted to a broad.

3. Has appointed lesbian civil rights attorney Eckstein Achtenberg as assistant secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Achtenberg was partially responsible for the Boy Scouts ban on gay scouts and leaders from the United Way in San Francisco following the legal battle to prevent two homosexuals from being Scoutmasters.

4. Supports giving taxpayers fund abortion, while so many are opposed to this barbarous practice.

His idea of taxing the American people to prosperity defies all economic logic.

Clinton was never very clear about what he was doing in Russia in 1989, but it appears that he may have been studying socialism.

The tax credit for first-time home buyers is a good idea. But Durbin wanted it to have created thousands of jobs, but liberals like Durbin thought it more advantageous to have more unemployed workers in order for the Democrats to occupy the White House.

Both defendants were double drunk, with blood alcohol concentrations (BAC) of 0.20 percent and 0.26 percent, respectively.

At those levels, a driver is at least 100 times more likely to have a crash than a sober driver. One of the defendants was arrested after he passed out behind the wheel.

The troopers were paid a $100 U.S. Savings Bond by AAIM under our "Drunkbusters" program.

In effect throughout Wisconsin and Illinois, and in modified form throughout the country, "Drunkbusters" encourages the public to report impaired drivers to the police, who can remove them from the roads before they cause tragedies.

More than $30,000 in rewards have been paid so far to 373 tips.

Everyone may participate by contacting police via car phone,

CB (citizen band) radio or in person with a license plate number and other information about suspected impaired drivers.

If police make an arrest for DUI, the "Drunkbuster" should ask for AAIM to send a verification form to AAIM.

By working together, citizens and police make the streets safer, in Granite City and elsewhere.

You write the caption!

More than a thousand photographs grace the pages of the Press-Record/Journal every year. But sometimes the most interesting ones never make the news pages.

Today, we present a handful of those that never saw the light of the printer's ink. Submitted for publication by schools, organizations, businesses and photo relation firms, they were originally designed with a serious purpose: to illustrate a story or idea. But without the captions that accompanied them, the photographs take on a new — and often ridiculous — appearance.

Today, our readers get the opportunity to supply their own captions.

To enter the just-for-fun contest, send your captions for any or all of the photographs to the Press-Record Journal, 1815 Delmar, Granite City, IL 62040. We'll print your suggestions in an upcoming issue.

Fort de Chartres • Street Rendezvous this weekend

The Midwest's largest gathering of 1700 era soldiers, settlers, and campers is being held Saturday and Sunday, June 5-6, at the 24th annual Rendezvous at Fort de Chartres State Historic Site. Activities are scheduled from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Rendezvous brings people from across the country who are interested in reenacting the traditions and customs of the mid-1700s. All activities are free and open to the public, and many feature public participation.

The event is co-sponsored by the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency and Les Coeurers de Bois de Fort de Chartres with assistance from Gov. Jim Edgar's office.

All-day events include flintlock muzzle loading competitions, pistol shoots and military drill. The fort's camp will be fired and breached with an instruction in the art of cannon firing by the 17th Illinois Territorial Rangers. Adam Adrian Crowley, art-at-the-furnace, from Utica, N.Y., will present firemaking demonstrations day with free lessons and a "fence-off" for all age groups.

There will be more than 150 blacksmiths, a group of three folk music groups, two fifes and drum corps, one bagpipe unit, 20 historic and modern food vendors and 900 primitive campers.

Activities will include pottery, blacksmithing, tinsmithing, coppering, pewter casting, felt making, lacemaking, weaving, leatherworking, basketry, gunsmithing, treenware making and silhouette cutting. Many items will be for sale.

David Keene of Archeological Research Inc. will give a informative slide show in the Peithman Museum on the archeology and reconstruction of the fort, and will conduct a walking tour of the site twice a day.

Back again this year is the popular "Fads and Fancies" an 18th century fashion show hosted by the Peithman Museum.

For de Chartres State Historic Site, administered by Illinois Historic Preservation Agency, is located 4 miles west of Prairie du Rocher, and 30 miles south of Belleville, on Illinois Route 155 and follow the signs.

Those who utilize the special event parking area near Fort de Chartres will be charged $3 per car and $10 per bus. On-ground camping is limited to event participants.

The Ste. Genevieve/Modoc Ferry will operate throughout Rendezvous weekend. The ferry will cross between Ste. Genevieve, Mo., and the Illinois side of the river from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday, June 6. Fees are $6 per car or single-occupant; $8 for RVs, $10 for small buses, and $25 for large buses.

Bigger riverboat pleases gamblers

Bigger definitely is better when it comes to riverboat cruises, but said the 3 p.m. cruise was a near sellout.

The riverfront area was hopping as gamblers enjoyed free hot dogs, popcorn and lemonade while waiting to board the boat at the original Belle, which remained docked but inactive a few yards away.

"The customers are upbeat, and say the original Belle is better," Norton said. "For many customers, one cruise on the Belle II was not enough."

"They just think it's gorgeous," reservationist Traci Simpson said. "There are a lot of people coming off and going back on."

Ron and Diane Lutie and Frank and Bonnie Kalumba of Chicago raved about the Belle II after taking the noon cruise, which has three times the gaming capacity of the original Belle, eased the blow her pocketbook took at the slot machines on the boat.

"The boat is beautiful, especially with my money in it. We helped finance it today," she said with a chuckle.

Both couples had worked throughout the night Friday and into the wee hours Saturday preparing the 1,200-passenger boat and the 200 temporary workers for its first cruise.

The work prevented the boat from leaving the dock for the 8:30 a.m. cruise.

"We were hammering and nailing all day down to 8:30 this morning," said Steve Norton, chief operating officer for Argosy Co., which owns the boat. "We added some ramping so people wouldn't have to jump across to get on the boat."

Belle officials would not reveal the attendance of Saturday's hour to get a (slot) machine. On this boat, you can get on whenever and there are machines available. If you want to change, you can leave and find another one if you want to."

Steve Taylor of Mascoutah, a regular on the original Belle, said he won $950 — playing blackjack. Steve credited his luck to the Belle's first day and his son, Tony's, 21st birthday.

"There's much more room. Maybe that makes me much more lucky," he said.

Dan Martin of Springfield, Mo., said he left his room at the Adam's Mark Hotel in downtown St. Louis to "kill some time" on the noon cruise.

Martin, who accompanied his wife, Jeanie, to a four-day decorative painting convention in St. Louis, said he ended up making a killing — $300 — at one of the local antique stores.

"I think this boat is a great tourist attraction," said Martin, a self-professed regular gambler who frequents the bars and the blackjack tables.

"It's not as crowded as lots of the other boats we've been on," said Diane Lutie, who tried her luck at some of the more slot machines.

"On most boats, if you're one of the first hundred people on, you have to wait maybe an hour to get a (slot) machine. On this boat, you can get on whenever and there are machines available. If you want to change, you can leave and find another one if you want to."

Telluride scholarship awarded

Amber Baum, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Raub of Granite City, has been awarded a scholarship to attend the Telluride Association Summer Program (TASP). Amber is the daughter of Elane Raub Feldman of Chicago and Dr. Eugene L. Baum of New York.

She is a student at the Latin School of Chicago, and is one of 60 students chosen from over 900 outstanding high school juniors from around the world who were invited to apply for the programs on the basis of their PSAT/NMSQT scores. Baum is the only Chicago student, and one of only four students from Illinois, to receive the award.

The program is designed to bring together young people from around the world who share a passion for learning. The program seminars are similar to upper-level college classes. Baum will attend the seminar, "Gender and Desire" at Williams College in Williamstown, Mass.

Grammer winner in English

The United States Achievement Academy has announced that Celeste Grammer has been named a United States National Award winner in English.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students.

Maria Celeste Grammer, who attends Virginia Junior High School, was nominated for the National Award by Mary Jane Brown, language teacher at the school. Celeste will appear in the United States Achievement Academy's Annual Yearbook, forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude, and cooperative spirit, dependency, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Celeste is the daughter of Larry and Graciela Grammer. The grandmother of the first and Esther Grammer of Granite City and Graciela Quintero of Chicago are also in the family.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.

Bagent honored by Illinois College

Erin Bagent of Hartford was one of more than 100 students singled out for academic excellence May 3 when Illinois College in Jacksonville held its annual Honors Day Convocation.

Bagent, a sophomore, was recognized for her excellence in German and she also received an Academic All-Conference Award.

The Honors Day Convocation featured the presentation of awards, prizes and scholarships in 18 different academic departments. The program also included presentation of several awards for leadership and campus service.

College awards scholarships

Five seniors from Granite City High School are among the more than 400 students who have been awarded honors scholarships by Illinois College in Jacksonville.

Local recipients are:

Daniel Petersen, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Petersen of Granite City.

Michelle Knox, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Knox of Granite City.

Dana Dresch, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dresch of Granite City.

Shawn Odorn, the daughter of Mrs. Peggy Besserman of Granite City.

Celia Heck, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Heck of Granite City.

The liberal arts college awards the academic honors scholarships to incoming freshmen based upon their ACT score and class rank. The awards range from a minimum of $1,300 for a score of 22 to 24, a minimum of $1,600 for 25 to 26, and a minimum of $1,800 for a score of 27 or above.

Math scholarship awarded

Barbara E. Porter of Granite City, a student at Southeast Missouri State University's Cape Girardeau, was named the recipient of the Russell J. and Elvira Michel Mathematics Scholarship at the University's College of Science and Technology honors program April 21.

The Michel Mathematics Scholarship is awarded to a mathematics major who exhibits unusual interest in mathematics and possesses capabilities to pursue graduate work in mathematics. An eligible candidate must have a minimum grade point average of 3.5, must have completed mathematics courses through the calculus sequence, be recommended by a member of the Department of Mathematics faculty, and be a declared mathematics major.

The College of Science and Technology holds an annual honors program to recognize students and their academic achievements in their discipline. Honor students majoring in the departments of agriculture, biology, chemistry, computer science, geosciences, industrial technology, mathematics and physics were recognized.

SIUE students receive honors

More than 1,000 students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville were recognized for academic achievement Sunday, May 10, at the annual Honors Day Convocation. Ceremonies were held in the University Center. Approximately 190 students received special awards.

For Honors Day recognition, students must maintain a grade point average of 3.5 or better (3.4 being equivalent to a B; 4.0 equivalent to an A). In addition, these students must have completed and passed at least 24 hours of studies at the university to be eligible for the convocation. The SIUE Foundation gives awards to the graduating male and female with the highest four-year averages. This year's award, a academic excellence, went to Carol Fahay of Belleville, and Michael Steketee of Edwardsville. Both students maintained a 4.0 grade point average during the four years spent at SIUE.

Fahay is majoring in elementary education, while Steketee had a double major — biology science and elementary.

During the ceremonies, Donald McCabe, chairman of the department of political science at SIUE, received this year's Teaching Excellence Award. McCabe received a $2,000 monetary award. The students recognize the outstanding faculty members of the year. Recipients of the award this year included students enrolled in the instructors' classes and then selected by members of a university panel.

Also honored for teaching excellence were: David Valley, professor of speech communications; Allan B. associate professor of music; Pat Goche, associate professor of speech communications; and William Ward, professor of mass communications. They received $300 monetary awards.

Local students who received special awards during the convocation include:

Parent workshop stresses language

Early Childhood Parent Workshop Two was held at Early Childhood Program parents whose children attend Harris School in Madison and Maryville and Prather schools in Granite City.

The workshop was intended to impress upon parents the importance of language development by their children.

Early Childhood staff members presented a program that dealt with the many ways children use language at home.

Parents learned that how they talk to their children is important. A booklet called "Great Beginnings in Language" was given them. It contained suggestions about communicating with children.

Child care was provided and refreshments were served.

Workshop Two was the second in a series of three parent workshops under a grant.

The next topic to be announced as "the importance of parents reading to their child."

Frequently custodial parents will contact the office to inquire if they are entitled to child support from their former spouse. The question arises regarding what is required to obtain an increase in child support. Generally speaking, a modification of child support is warranted only upon a showing of a substantial change in circumstances.

In one recent case, a man and a woman were divorced in 1987, and the wife received custody of the two minor children. The father was ordered to pay $355 a month in child support every two weeks in child support. At the time of the dissolution of marriage, the son was 7 years old and the daughter was 10 years old.

In 1991, the mother petitioned the court to increase the father's child support payments by $355 a month to help with the increased expense of raising older children. At the hearing, the mother testified that the total increased costs of raising the two children was about $562.00 a month. She also testified that at the time the divorce, she was making $11,000.00 a year, but that four years later she was earning $18,000.00 a year.

The former husband argued that his ex-wife had allowed the children to become accustomed to a higher standard of living when the parties were married due to the fact that she now had a wealthy boyfriend. His argument was that he should not have to pay for this change in lifestyle. Further, he noted that his salary had decreased in the four years since the divorce.

The trial court denied the mother an increase in child support. The mother took the case on appeal, alleging that the evidence regarding the increased needs of the children was undervalued.

The Appellate Court reversed the trial court, noting that the evidence presented in this case clearly showed that the average monthly cost of raising the children had risen dramatically. The Court also took note of the fact that the ex-husband had remarried to a woman who earned $34,000.00 a year, and that he therefore had more income at his disposal than he did in 1987. For all of these reasons, the Appellate Court held that there was a substantial change of circumstances in this case, and the case was sent back to the trial court to determine whether support should be increased.

ite City earned five corner kicks in the second half and gained steam in the game.

But the first half belonged to the Senators, who controlled the field after tying the score with a goal from Patty McCauley. Springfield was coming off a 2-1 second-round semifinal win over Collinsville.

Coach Bob Wharton had a hard time describing what went wrong in the half.

"I thought we were back in it," Springfield coach Bob Wharton said. "It was just like the Collinsville game."

"In the second half, they just took it to us. They responded to whatever was said. That was a different team in the second half, not the team in the first half," Wharton said.

"It looked like in the first half they were feeling us out, and then Gene told them to go out and score some goals," said Tom Vargas, Springfield's assistant coach.

Baker said it was just a matter of making a few adjustments on offense and tightening up defense. "It was a mistake when Knox was moved up front to work with Holly Farnsworth, a switch that gave the Lady Warriors some additional energy," Baker said.

Farnsworth shot a goal past Springfield goalkeeper Jenny Vargas to give the Lady Warriors a 2-1 lead at the 46-minute mark. Knox received an assist on the goal and continued to put pressure on the net.

"We switched some of our positions around," Baker said. "They were confused on who to cover."

Rapoff scored Granite City's next goal on a free kick from 30 yards out. Her shot rocketed just over Vargas' outstretched hands and into the net.

"That was a big-time goal," Baker said.

"We work on those dead balls a lot," Rapoff said. "Coach talks us through it. I was just trying to get it on goal."

Rapoff's goal seemed to put the game out of reach from Springfield, but not the Lady Warriors. They kept attacking. After Farnsworth missed the net from the shot, Vargas robbed Knox on a shot that came off a corner kick. Soon after, Vargas stopped Dowdy on an excellent scoring opportunity.

After Vargas stopped Knox on another shot, Knox came back with an unassisted goal to close out the scoring.

from third base. But Bollman's bunt went into the air and glanced off the fence deep into foul territory, allowing the run to score and making it 2-0.

The Warriors had a baserunner in each inning, but their only scoring threats were in the fourth, fifth and seventh innings. Their best scoring chance came in the sixth.

With Bollman at first and no outs, Jeff Ridenour drove a ball deep to left field that would have normally gone for extra bases. But Mahler made a running catch to kill the threat.

"That left fielder made the play of the game," Stegemeyer said.

In the fourth inning, Ridenour led off with a single. Rob Edmon then laced a hit to right field,

"If we would have played five more minutes, she might have scored five more goals," Baker said.

Knox said she enjoyed playing up front in new-look Lady Warrior offense.

"It was fun," Knox said. "I liked it. I think Holly and I did OK."

Farnsworth, who scored the first two goals in Saturday's 5-0 win over Quincy, drew considerable attention from the Springfield crowd.

"Coach told me they'd probably have me marked," Farnsworth said. "It bothered me, but just a little bit."

The crowd on Farnsworth opened up the field for players like Knox, Ann Logan and Kami Kessel. Defensively, Granite City thrived behind the leadership of Holly Farnsworth.

It was one of the Lady Warriors' best efforts of the year and a tremendous comeback from the first half. The threat of ending the season with a trip to state seemed to bring the team together.

"I guess we just really turned it on," Rapoff said. "I guess we realized we were one half away from not going anywhere. We settled down and put some passes together."

"We just need to bring our attitude up and go out and play like we're capable," Farnsworth said. "I think we really wanted it. We've been practicing all year for this."

"Bob just told us to keep our heads up," Kult said. "We came out slow, but everybody got together."

And the Lady Warriors allowed Springfield a dangerous opening on McCauley's goal. McCauley worked her way through Granite City's defense and scored past Kult.

"They were very good team," Baker said. "It was a very small letdown on our part, and they were good enough to take advantage of it."

The Lady Warriors' win was their fifth straight. Their last loss came against Francis Howell North in the St. Dominic Tournament in April.

The Lady Warriors ended sectional play with four wins. They opened the state opponents are Missy Eckerle, Lisa Knafl and Allison Husarik. Husarik had two goals in the Mustangs' win over Glenwood.

Mills has recorded a school-record 16 shutouts this year, and she has allowed just 10 goals in 24 games.

Lady Warrior goalkeeper Stephen Kult has had similar success. She was in goal two years ago when Granite City defeated Downers Grove South.

Find the hole on a hit-and-run play. Ridenour attempted to go to third base on the play, but the Tigers' Allison Bollman got out with a slide to Bugar at third.

"Coach Stegemeyer made a big mistake," Stegemeyer said. "It was a bad judgment. Ridenour had great speed, but the right fielder made a great throw."

The Tigers almost gave the game away in the seventhinning. With one out, shortstop Bollman stepped up to the plate to reach by letting a ground ball roll between his legs. Then, with two outs, Bollman failed to catch a fly ball just behind the pitcher's mound and allowed another runner to reach the base.

The Warriors, however, failed to capitalize.

"We gave them five outs, but we worked out of it," Bollman said.

•State

The Lady Warriors hope they will be taken lightly this week even though they are in arguably the tougher bracket with Downers Grove South, St. Charles and Rockford Boylan.

Downers Grove South placed third in state last year. St. Charles will be out to defend its state title.

"We're going up there with the idea that they feel the same way we do," Kult said. "It's going to be a real chore. It takes three games in 24 hours to win."

The Lady Warriors will play the last game of the day Friday against Downers Grove South, a team that has three all-state players. Teams outside Chicago typically do not get as much all-state recognition.

The Springfield Sacred Heart-Griffin Sectional had just four all-state players. Sacred Heart-Griffin goalkeeper Karen Wake, Beth Raynor and Kristin Raynolds of Springfield and Granite City's Beth Rapoff.

"The fact that Granite City has only one all-state player is a bit of a surprise," Kult said. "There's definitely more than one all-state player on that team."

Rapoff, for one, agrees.

"Everybody on the team deserves a lot more recognition," Rapoff said.

"We'll just do our best and try to prove them wrong," senior goalkeeper Stephen Kult said. "A lack of recognition could help the Lady Warriors, who will enter the state tournament for the most part as an unknown."

Most of Granite City's eight seniors were on the team that placed fourth two years ago.

Kult was in goal that season.

"We're really excited," Kult said. "We'll just go out and play our game. We've prepared all year for this. It'll be one game at a time."

"We go out and play our style, we can do it."

"I think we can definitely improve (in 1991)," Rapoff said. "We're a lot more together as a team. We're really excited. We're really looking forward to it."

"There's eight of us, and we want it really bad," senior Michaela.

Ann Logan, another talented Granite City senior, said: "This is the way to go out. We'll try our best to get through it."

The Lady Warriors will play the last game of the day Friday against Downers Grove South, a team that has three all-state players. Teams outside Chicago typically do not get as much all-state recognition.

Baker is happy to see his team back in Naperville.

"They earned it," Baker said. "They've worked hard."

Kami Kessel, a junior midfielder, knows this year's team is at its peak. The Lady Warriors are expected to do well in their return to state.

"This has to be our year, I think," Kessel said. "It means a lot more this time."

The Lady Warriors proved to be too tough in the sectional after outscoring the opposition 11-0 in the semifinals. Other coaches said Granite City was a level above the rest of the field.

Wharton, who said he thoroughly scouted Granite City, said the Lady Warriors' deep bench could be a key at state.

"We know what we're going to do," Wharton said. "We knew all their players. We defended it, we just couldn't stop it. That's what's so impressive."

Park District to sponsor trip to Cards game

The Granite City Park District will sponsor its second trip for senior citizens to Busch Stadium on June 16 for a 12:30 p.m. game against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The cost of the trip is $9 per person. It includes the cost of a large reserved seat and bus transportation to and from the game. The bus will leave from the Wilson Park ice rink at 11 a.m.

Lazerson recognized for leadership

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville President Earl Lazerson was recognized at the recent Student Leadership Recognition Program for setting "the standard of leadership for students."

In addition to President Lazerson, the program honored some 60 SIUE students, faculty and staff, as well as community organization for "outstanding contributions in leadership and service to the university" and to the community at-large.

Ann Lazerson was also honored for her work in support of the leadership program and as an "outstanding mother" who emulates the true spirit of volunteerism and community service.

While President Lazerson who initiated the leadership program at SIUE, but he credited SIUE vice president for Student Affairs Constance Rockingham and her staff, as well as the program's student participants over the past six years, for its success.

Since the Student Leadership Development Program has involved some 1,300 students who have donated time and energy to volunteering for service projects either on campus or in the surrounding region.

In speaking to the public attended the ceremonies, President Lazerson said the institution is blessed with students on this campus who are committed to enhancing their leadership skills. In the course of the students' education at SIUE, where they have access to the Student Leadership Development Program, these students have begun to build for themselves a sense of who they are. They have discovered their own voice.

Stone fails to click in 'Sliver'

By Harry Hamm

known writer of fiction, played in the building.

Murders in Stone's building are a weekly occurrence. The building almost needs its own

Berenger tries to convince

Stone that Baldwin is a murderer, but she believes he is the victim, as she is in "Sliver."

The romantic chemistry that was so strong between Michael

Douglas and Diane in "Basic

Overall, the picture is all hype and no substance.

The title "Sliver" comes from the way the workers use it to describe many new high-rise apartment buildings designed in an angular, narrow style.

Voyeurism is the promised attraction of "Sliver," but it doesn't work. Stone is beautiful

Song remakes often score hits — again

By Bill Beggs
Correspondent

SECOND TIME AROUND: If

remakes of songs don't make much money, they at least cover expenses for bands until they're willing or able to record

some of their own music.

When classic songs by Elvis

Presley, a No. 2 hit from 1962, was remade by UB40 and currently is on "Billboard's" Hot

100, it's a hit again.

Neil Sedaka took this tune to

No. 1 in 1962, then hit No. 8 in 1972 with a remake of it. Lenny

Woods, No. 34 and the Partridge

Family No. 28 with the song, what is it?

"Shop Shop Song (It's in

His Kiss)," a No. 6 hit for Betty

Everett in 1964, was remade by the band for the "Mermaids" soundtrack, making it to No. 33 in 1991.

What Ritchie Valens tune

that hit No. 29 in 1959 became a

No. 1 for the Lovin' Spoonful in 1966? It's "Daydream Believer."

What hard-rock band has managed a long chart run with its "Top 40" remake of Harry

Chapin's No. 1 hit of Gray

Day? It's "I'm Gonna Be (500 Miles)" by the band formed of Rock Around.

Before, it was "I'm Gonna Be
